

This bio is personally from me – McAuthor “Jaxsn” Jackson

When I look at a bass guitar, it amazes me that a warm sweet sound comes from wood and steel.

When I explore this instrument’s many capabilities of generating different sounds, not expected from this instrument of low frequency, it puts me in a state of worship. Worship so close to my worship towards God that I have to remind and train myself to remember this is only a tool I use to thank Jehovah for this ability to use this, under appreciated, instrument to praise and serve Him. This position and power is of a great worthiness and at the same time very dangerous. It can build pride so high, it will cause destruction in the life of many, just read in the bible about Lucifer the musician.

As the years developed, my mind realize my role with this instrument, I have accepted that this instrument is an extension of my body, it has conformed to me in such a way that I use it as a voice for my spirit when it is played.

There are times when I would talk to my bass, kiss my bass, and unknowing loving my bass by crying while playing it, or getting emotionally weak while playing it, because the sound is so pleasing to my soul, but I feel I can not give it even more love than I feel it is worthy of.

Strangely, I only get this feeling towards my dad and ultimately Jesus / Jehovah. To help you understand more clearly, Have you ever got to the point where greatness in words of appreciation did not seem to do justice in expressing your love towards someone or Jesus / Jehovah?, Then you say “I just.. I, If I can just merge my spirit with yours to show my love, that still would not be enough to show how deep my love is towards you”.

As my days are numbered, I have accepted this not to be a musical instrument I play, It is a tool that my body forgot to grow at birth and my spirit desired it so much that it forced my soul to seek it for the completeness of JAXSN.

If by now you have not figured out the role of a Bass Guitar in Jaxsn’s life, The Bass Guitar – for JAXSN, is not an instrument. It is a Spiritual Tool I use for my Godly purpose, so the natural Bass Guitar instrument MUST BE OF HEAVENLY KINGDOM EXCELLENCE AND PLAYABILITY so I can do my work.

If Jaxsn use just any sword, I put my life and others in grave danger.

The Bass is my sword.

- Jaxsn